The Most Despicable Man The man whom I thoroughly and pos The man whom I horoughly and pos-tively het, and against whom as a type I would warn young women, as the board of health officers warn the public against infection with a scarlet fever card, is the domestic tyraut, the man who is a bully in his own family, the man who is a hero at home and a coward among bigger men than he. When he was a boy, he loved to torture kittens, trap rabbits and tease birds by breaking up their nests and cracking their eggs. But a yearling calf or a sitting hen would always make him run. Now he is a man, he swears at his wife and mags her life he awars at his wife that hags he's alway, He sends the cold chills down the children's spines whenever his stops draw nigh and is as pompous and big feeling among the women folks and the helpless boys and girls as a fussy old turker gobbier with his hens.
